

CANAH International and Hempro International are major players in the European hemp food industry. They have over a decade of experience with hemp food processing.

The quality of the hemp grains used as raw material is the basis for building up the quality of hemp food products. The presentation intends to give an overview of the cornerstones important in supplying quality hemp grains to food processors. It is mainly addressed to hemp farmers and suppliers of hemp grains.