

Steve Allin - Abstract

Hemp building materials have now been used across the world, from hi tech industrial applications to simple hand applied techniques. The range of projects now completed illustrates how important this material is to a low carbon approach for the future. Selecting a few of the many projects Steve will feature in the upcoming Book Hemp Buildings he will show how various mixtures of Hemp and other natural products can be utilised to create a great variety of structures.